Man Bicycles Way Through Farmington to New York

By Don Platz

Vacationers looking for a different trip this year might try the method of travel Kent Croswell is using this year: an 18-speed bicycle.

By July 29, Croswell predicts he will have seen the USA vis his 18-speed Schwinn. He made a stopover in Farmington Wednesday night to recuperate and do a little shopping before heading on toward Navajo Dam and then Chama.

Croswell is traveling to New York from Los Angeles and began his trip the first week of June. Croswell is a second year medical student at the University of Texas, Lubbock, and decided to spend his vacation seeing the country on a bicycle. He also wanted to spend his vacation with his parents, so they are following him in a pickup truck, crammed with food and equipment. A spare bicycle is lashed to the front of the pickup while Croswell rides.

"I wanted to see the country, slowly. This has turned out to be a real good way to do it. While some cyclists make 80 or 90 miles in a day, riding all day, I do about 40 at a more leisurely pace," said Croswell.

"So far its been a pretty good trip. There haven't been any real rough incidents or trouble," said Croswell. He admits, however, that the smog in Los Angeles slowed him down a bit.

"I actually started in Santa Monica and went through Los Angeles, including parts of Beverly Hills and then the downtown area. Part of it was pretty rough. I wasn't sure I was going to get through some of the pollution," said Croswell.

The next rough spot came when Croswell arrived at the Four Corners area and ran smack dab into a strong headwind. "That was kind of tiring. And then rain was predicted yesterday, but it missed us. This (Farmington) is the coldest its been since we started," he said. Other than the weather, the trip to date has been accident free.

After Chama, Croswell's route to New York will take him through Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, southern Illinois to Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and then New York.

Ben Crosswell, AUXOBT Award from Coast Guard Auxiliary. It qualifies him to pilot boats for rescue missions.

Ken Croswell's honor

Kenneth L. Croswell, a transplanted Arkansan, has been honored as the latest winner of the R. L. Newton Award: the plaque is given for conspicuous service to the Warren YMCA.

The Croswell story parallels the American dream, really: Croswell came from a Depression-era family for which the phrase "modest means" hardly reflects the situation.

Croswell was called "Skillet" by his friends because he was so very tall and slender: one of the reasons he was so slender was, perhaps, that he didn't have enough of the correct things to eat, literally . . . things were That Way for many good people in the great American Depression of the 1930's.

He played for Dick Nance and the Warren Lumberjacks as a cager, but he "got his start" at the YMCA in basketball: he's never forgotten it through a career that has seen him become a Little All-America basketball player, a Marine Colonel, and a very well-fixed west coast land developer.

Time and again, Croswell has stepped in and helped, financially, as the Warren YMCA has survived this fiscal scrape and that one.

Money problems are not the only ones that attract Croswell's attention: the warning lights at the crosswalk in front of the YMCA were placed there at his expense (Director David King says, by the way, that many people are not paying attention to those lights on that crosswalk . . . and that some kid will get hit, even yet, by a truck or a car at that crossing).

But, all in all, Ken Croswell is a fitting recipient for the service award, even though he resides over 2,000 miles away from Bradley County.

"Warren and the YMCA are always on my mind", Croswell said on the day he was honored. "I'll be buried here", he concluded.

GETS R. L. NEWTON AWARD:

YMCA honors Benefactor Ken Croswell

Warren YMCA presented its R. L. Newton Service Award for the first time in 16 years last weekend to Ken Croswell, a Warren native who has prospered as a land developer in California.

Other winners of the award have been S. M. Dixon, G. W. Botts, Jr., Joe Reaves, Jr., Dr. James W. Marsh, and Lou Cummings.

The award honors outstanding service to the YMCA.

Making the presentation Sunday afternoon was David King, who heads the YMCA here. Mayor R. Gregg Reep had issued a proclamation calling for Sunday to be "Ken Croswell Day" in Warren.

Following the presentation of the awards to Croswell, refreshments were served to those present.

Directors of the YMCA now include Frank Anthony, Dr. Hal Brown, Dr. Donnie Bryant, Bob Cain, Murray Claycomb, John W. Cuthbertson, Larry Derby, Dr. John Durmon, Mrs. S. B. Fullerton, Mrs. Larry Goodsell, Mrs. Pat Hammons, W. C. Hargis, Bobby Hargrave, Greg Hargeton, Mrs. Joe Henley, Randal Herring, Tommy Larance, Hugh Quimby, Gregg Reep, Jim Sledge, Dr. Bob Smalling, Andrew Tolbert, Mrs. Joe Wharton, and the Rev. G. Mackey Yokem.

Directors of the YMCA Foundation include Freddie Mobley, Charlie Eddington, C. E. Jayne, and G. C. Sangster.

Croswell has been generous to the YMCA over the years, particularly in recent remodeling and improvement phases.

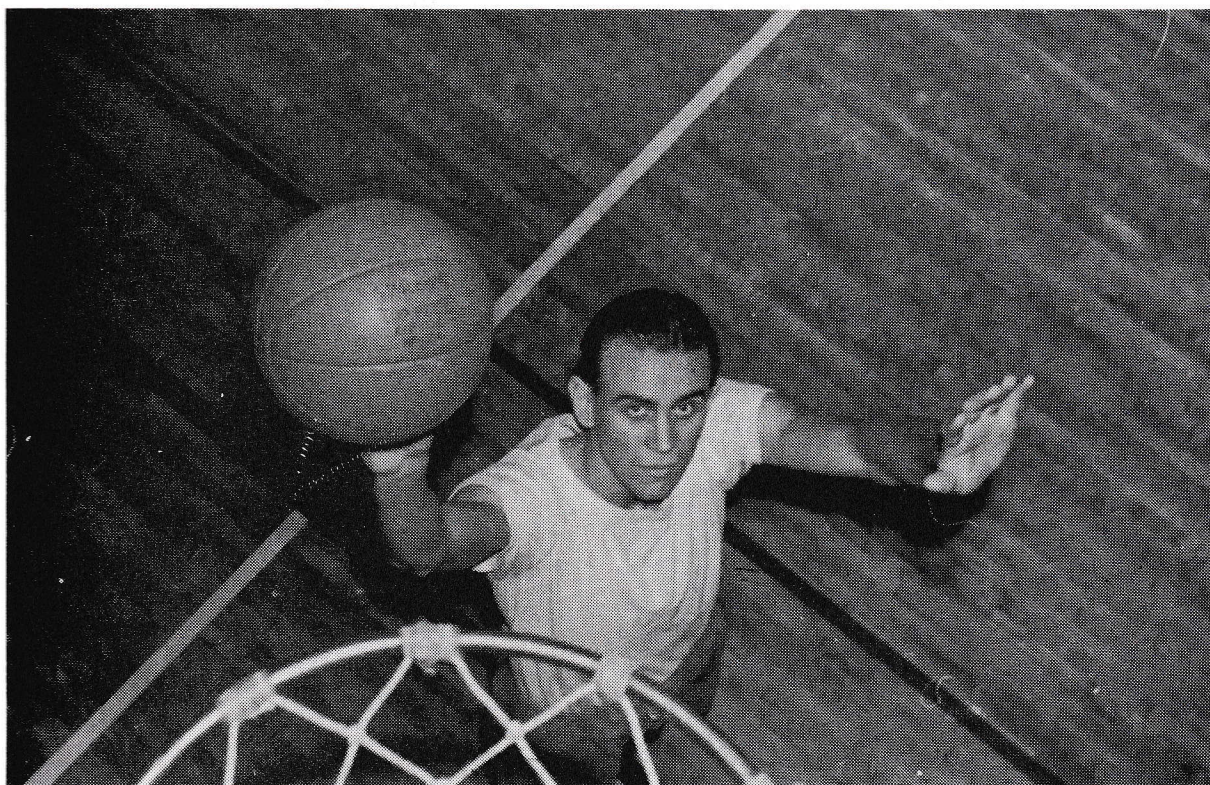

At Sunday's presentation, he said the YMCA and Warren would always be in his mind.

"I live in California", he concluded, "but I will be buried here".

Croswell is recovering from the latest of a series of heart attacks.

NEWTON AWARD — David King of the YMCA Staff presents the R. L. Newton award to Ken Croswell of Santa Monica, California, a longtime YMCA benefactor. The Newton Service Award hasn't been given in 16 years.
